Let Paris Have a Hospital.

Many centuries before the Christian era there existed in India and Ceylon, institutions which performed the functions of hospitals. They were built and maintained by the Buddhists. In scriptures there is a mention of what the Hebrews called Bethesda, but this was nothing more than a few rude huts in the neighborhood of a mineral spring, supposed to have healing properties.
According to Lecky (history of European morals,) the first hospital was founded by a Roman lady named Fabiala, about the fourth century, at Rome.
Soon after, another hospital was founded by St. Pammachius, and another by St. Basil, at Caesarea. During the crusades, numerous hospitals arose in all parts of Europe. Son Spiritu, built by Innocent III, was erected in 1204, at Rome. The first hospital in England was built by Lafrance, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1080. The first hospital of any size erected in America; was the Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, which was begun in 1751, by Dr. Band.
So you see, Paris is living comparatively in the darker age. Everybody help Paris with a hospital.

Plant Trees.

A contributor to the Lexington Herald, says: "Let the ladies of the cities, now by interurban road made twin, be upheld in their good work. Let the land owners on both sides plant the seeds and plant the trees they can so quickly procure, and plant them well.
The shade for stock, the value of timber, the falling moist, and the value of trees on land, will be their immediate reward. The weary traveler resting beneath their shade will bless the hand that planted long after that hand is grasping dust. The scene of beauty will, like a spectral image on polished metal, fall on receptive minds, forever there to work for good. And that planting will be the joyous Mecca to which untold generations of children will tend with lissome tread. If the heart of childhood ever swells with joy, or its eye kindles with anticipation, it is when the plant begins to fall. Then if ever, when the hand is stained, the lip tarnished and the sack filled, its heart has room for no other earthly bliss. And these rows of trees planted here, planted everywhere in this glorious land, will break the winds that dry the fields and prostrate the grain. Not more of rain will fall, but that falling will longer fill its mission."

General News.

Coney Island, New York, was swept by fire, 250 buildings being destroyed, entailing a loss of $1,000,000. No lives were lost, although several persons were seriously injured.

Four persons were killed and a corpse was thrown from a coffin and inflated by a Southern railway train running into a funeral procession at a crossing near Concord, N. C.

Chief of Police George Airie, of Morgan Park, Chicago, was stabbed to death by a negro while trying to arrest the negro's sister. A mob gathered and a lynching was narrowly averted, the negro being spirited away.

Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Emma Booth-Tucker were held
Sunday afternoon in Carnegie Hall,
New York. Commander Booth-Tucker and others delivered addresses and a cablegram from G. Wm. Booth was read.

Both parties will hold caucuses in Washington Saturday, Joseph G. Gannon will be nominated by the Republicans for Speaker of the House. John S. Williams, of Mississippi, will no doubt receive the complimentary nomination of the Democrats for Speaker.

Yellow fever has apparently run its course at San Antonio, Texas., and the excitement has completely died out.

A Big Four train carrying members of the football team of Purdue University, from Lafayette, Ind., was wrecked near Indianapolis, Saturday morning.
Many were killed and wounded,
twelve bodies were taken out.

At New York, twenty-one men, three women and a babe perished in a fire, Sunday morning, in the "house of all nations," a tenement house.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

To Be Voted On at the November Election.

CHAPTER 50.

An act to provide for an amendment to Section 181 of the Constitution of Kentucky.

"The General Assembly may, by general laws only, authorize CITIES OR TOWNS OF ANY CLASS to provide for taxation for municipal purposes, on personal property, tangible and intangible, based on income, licenses or franchises, in lieu of an ad valorem tax thereon;

"Provided, cities of the first class shall not be authorized to omit the imposition of an ad valorem tax on such property of any steam railroad, street railway, ferry, bridge, gas, water, heating, telephone, telegraph, electric light or electric power company."

TELEPHONE AS WINE-TESTER.

Electric Current Put to a New Use in Paris—Adulterations Made to Talk.

One hears of wonderful new applications or uses for the electric current—some of real value, others nonsensical, but probably one of the latest is the testing of wine by means of the telephone. According to the Paris correspondent of a London daily paper, a M. Maneuvrier, director of the laboratory of researches of the Paris Faculty of Sciences, has discovered an infallible method of ascertaining by means of the telephone how much a given quantity of wine has been watered. The principle on which the invention rests is the variable conductivity of different liquids, notably wine and water. The originality of M. Maneuvrier's ingenious application is his use of the telephone to determine to what degree the liquid under observation is a conductor.

He has constructed an apparatus, the details of which are not given, which is said to achieve this object satisfactorily and accurately.

The apparatus works as follows: Two vessels, one containing wine known to be pure, and the other the same quantity of the wine to be tested, are placed on an instrument outwardly resembling a pair of scales. The telephone is in contact with both liquids. If the sample of wine under observation is as pure as the standard used for comparison no sound is heard; if, on the contrary, it contains water, the tell-tale telephone "speaks," and the greater the proportion of water the louder the instrument complains.

HOW JAPS PLAY KEN.

Old Game Gives Belles of Far East Opportunity to Display Their Beautiful Hands.

In its most widely practiced form the basis of the Japanese game of ken is that the fully outstretched hand signifies paper; the fully closed hand, a stone; and two fingers alone extended, the rest being closed, scissors. Each of the players, says the Japan Mail, counting one, two, three, throws out his hand, at the moment of pronouncing three, and the out whose manual symbol is superior to that of the others, according to the theory of the game, was the trial.

Superiority is determined on the hypothesis that whereas scissors cannot cut a stone, they can cut paper, and whereas paper is cut by scissors, it can wrap up a stone. Consequently scissors is inferior to stone, stone is inferior to paper, and paper is inferior to scissors, and paper is inferior to scissors, and paper is inferior to scissors. There are innumerable varieties of the game—for it is not a mere method of determining a dispute of priority—and they are constantly added to by ingenious young ladies, the dancing-girl class especially, who play it with exquisite grace and judicious enhancement of beautiful hands and arms.

EARNING EDUCATION.

Yale Students Work Their Way Through College.

Serve as Waiters, Drive Milk Wagons, Act as Fall Bearers and Do Other Things to Pay Their Expenses.

About 70 freshmen, or one-fifth of the class, in the academic department at Yale this year expect to earn all or part of the money required to pay the expense of their first year in college. In the whole university, Prof. C. L. Kitchel, of the self help bureau, reports, about 200 men will make the experiment of trying to support themselves this year for the first time. In the academic department the corporation has voted about $20,000 this year for scholarships for needy students, and this will be given out principally through the bureau of self help, reports the New York Sun.

When the students left for the long vacation last June about 300 applied for work for the summer, and Prof. Kitchel is just getting returns of the work done by the men. The long vacation is regarded the poor student's golden opportunity, for the more he earns the less he will have to work for a livelihood during the college year.

One man has reported that he earned $700 by tutoring a young man in Washington for ten weeks. Another has cared for three young children of a Yale professor during the summer months and has added considerable to his stock of money.

Several men have been driving milk wagons in the early morning hours and harvested hay between times. One student was head waiter at a hotel at Plymouth, Mass. A Yale graduate who is an invalid and resides near New Haven, has been traveling through Nova Scotia and has had with him a Yale man to act as nurse and guide.

A half dozen Yale men have been acting as pallbearers at funerals during the season and have found the work so profitable that they will continue after college opens. The Silver Bay religious conference at Lake George attracted a score or more of needy Yale men and all had a successful time there.

One student has been making out bills of fare at a White Mountain resort all the season and he has been so successful that the leading Yale "joint" of the town has hired him for the coming year to make out all its menus.

All the summer resorts from Block Island to Kennebunkport have had small colonies of Yale men acting as waiters, clerks, cooks and general helpers.

It is estimated that the students of the academic department have earned during the year just closed about $40,000. Last year 37 sophomores earned $10,000 and 28 seniors earned $8,000. These figures include only those who made reports to the bureau of self help and not all who earned part of their tuition.

Besides the routine work furnished each year for needy students during term time, which includes waiting on table, caring for furnaces, lawns and horses, doing street car service, clerical work and reporting, there is a new field open this year in the line of chauffeurs and already several Yale men have qualified themselves in this capacity.

An increasing number of students this year have come back to college with automobiles, and Prof. Kitchel expects that there will be an opportunity for several expert chauffeurs to earn good money this fall in managing fractious machines and teaching the novice to handle the vehicles.

MAN-OF-WAR MESSING.

System in Vogue on Uncle Sam's Gunboats Is Necessarily Very Stringent.

The messing system on board a big man-of-war is as complex and complete as the table service of a big hotel. The modern warship, with its five or six hundred persons on board, must be a floating hotel and storehouse in itself, writes Mrs. George M. Stackhouse, in Gunton's Magazine. Every vessel of the navy is required by the regulations governing the navy to have a general messing system. The enlisted men on ship are divided into squads of about 20 each, forming a mess. Chief petty officers and officers' servants are not included in this division. Every mess has one or two petty officers at its table, who fare like the men. Every mess has its special messman who brings the food from the galley and serves it at the table. It is also the messman's duty to see that the messable and messgear are clean and in order. The messes on board ship are under the direct supervision of the commissary department, which is under the control of the pay officers.

A Bottomless Cup.

It is interesting to recall to-day a curious fact about the America cup. Twenty-seven inches high, and measuring two feet round the base and a yard round the middle, the cup, it was discovered years after it had been in the possession of the Americans, had no proper bottom to it. On a festive occasion, in honor of an English guest at the New York Yacht club, the cup, it was found, would not hold the champagne with which a steward was attempting to fill it. The champagne, in fact, as fast as it was poured in at the top ran out at the bottom, a large hole having purposely or otherwise been left by the English makers.

Siam Safes.

For giving confidence to visitors there is nothing so useful in an office as a very solid-looking safe, and the working carpenter in South-East London who noted this fact has reason to bless his own acumen, for he does well by the sale of sham safes. There is a real demand for them at prices running from about $10 to $50. The dollars, need it be said, are not beginners in business.

HOPE FOR INDIANS' FUTURE.

Many Red Men Said to Be Refusing Government Rations and Seeking Employment.

Long strides are being taken toward placing the Indians of the west on a self-sustaining basis and making industrious citizens of them. Secretary Hitchcock and Indian Commissioner Jones are well pleased with the reports of Indian agents, who advise the Interior department, according to the Chicago Tribune, that many Indians have voluntarily given up the rations allowed them by the government and have decided to work for their living. The allowance for rations amounts to one dollar a day. Many Indians have been employed by the government to assist in constructions of reservoirs on their reservations. Others have sought employment with railroads in the construction of new roads.

In some far western states Chinese labor has been utilized by railroad companies almost exclusively. Coolie labor has been quite satisfactory for the class of work performed, but the last year has developed that Indians are superior to Chinese. So satisfactory has been their work that the railroads have voluntarily increased the wages of Indians 10 per cent, above those paid to Chinese. Commissioner Jones asserts this condition of affairs indicates there is hope for the future of the Indian.

Heretofore there has been much difficulty in inducing the redmen to perform labor, but with the developments of the last 12 months those having control of the nation's wards are much encouraged.

MAN WITH BAD LUCK.

He Gets the Plugged Nickels and Canadian Dimes and Can't Get Rid of Them.

"Why is this?" asked the unlucky person selecting a penny from a handful of change in order to buy a baseball extra without the result of the games, says the New York Herald. "Every day I get a few plugged nickels and some Canadian dimes and quarters. I never look—or seldom. Other people get 'em and pass 'em on. They seem to have no trouble whatever. Now, with me it's different. Every day somebody turns a plugged nickel or Canadian dime back on me and I have to fish up a new piece of change. I simply cannot get rid of the things. I have no luck at all. I feel guilty. On a street car the other evening I held fast to a plugged nickel, determining to be rid of it. It was quite dark and the back platform was crowded. I turned my face away when the conductor came around, and passed him my nickel. He put it carefully in his coat pocket and collected the other fares. Then, bringing out a handful of change, he selected the bum five-cent piece, picked me out of everybody on the platform, and returned it with thanks. How is that? Once I got rid of a Canadian dime in a barber shop. I gave it to the bootblack with an honest explanation of the fact that it was a Canadian dime and he could take it for 10 cents or I would give him a nickel instead. 'Sure,' said he; 'I'll get rid of it.' And he did. He passed it back on me as change the next time I came in, and I never noticed it until I was a mile away. How is it, any way?"

OCTOGENARIAN'S HOPE.

Buffalo Merchant of Four Score Years Contemplates Return to Chicago "in a Few Years."

Admiration for Chicago, amounting almost to love for the western metropolis, is seen daily in people who have made their homes elsewhere, says the Chicago Tribune. This was illustrated the other day in Buffalo, when a man 80 years old lauded the city in which he had been a pioneer, and which he had not seen since he was a youth.

Two Chicago women, waiting for a train in Buffalo, entered a queer old general store near the river. An old man, puffing a clay pipe, ordered his clerks to bring chairs, and sat down to entertain his visitors.

"Do you live in Buffalo?" he asked. The women answered that their homes were in Chicago.

"Well, I declare!" said the merchant, joyfully. "That the finest place on earth. I used to live there 60 years ago; had a store in South Water street. I tell you it was a great place for a young man! Ferdinand Jones owned a lot on the north side, and you could buy a big chunk of State street for $3,000."

"I'm going to sell out here in a few years and go back and open another store there. There's a lot of money to be made there yet."

The visitors hurried away to catch their train and left the merchant of four score years contemplating his return to Chicago "in a few years."

Curious Action of Radium.

A Russian doctor named Loudon, of St. Petersburg, has published some interesting observations relative to the action of the Becquerel rays on the nervous system and on the eye. He found that when a box containing bromide of radium was placed in a cage in which mice were kept the animals became paralyzed and comatose, and died in five days. He also found that persons who are either totally blind, or have only the feeblest possible perception of light, are peculiarly sensitive to the Becquerel rays, and are able to form visual conceptions of the contour of objects the shadows of which are shown on a screen by means of the rays.

Not His the Silence.

O you whose doubt I know, whose pain I share,
Who cry into the night if God be there,
And wait, and listen, till the darkness seems
As empty and as meaningless as dreams!
Across my soul-dark shines one ray of light,
A silver star upon the void of night.
If there be comfort in it, take the thought:
Through countless years an Unknown Worker wrought,
Till lo! we see the sunrise, hear the wind,
Awake, rejoice, and guess a God behind!
Long ages more the Laborer will need
To give us soul-eyes that we see indeed;
Long ages more before our dulled ears
Shall catch the music of the quivering spheres.

Be still, O crying souls! I think He hears
The bitter falling of our midnight tears;
Years pitiful above the infant, Man;
Awaits the patient progress of His plan
Within the soul that now in anguish crows.
Not His the silence, but the deafness ours
—Marian Warner Wildman, in Century.

SKILLFUL MACHINES.

Electrical Devices That Act in an Intelligent Manner.

Used in the Government Census Office to Simplify the Work of Enumeration—Particulars of Operation.

The most striking application of machinery to the purposes of counting is in the electrical machines used in the census office, writes C. K. Wead, in St. Nicholas. Last summer tens of thousands of enumerators all over the country were busy writing down on large sheets of paper the names of all the people in the United States, their age, color, sex, place of birth, occupation, etc. If the only thing wanted were the number of people in the country, it would be enough to count the names on all these sheets and add them together. But the census experts wished to find out perhaps a thousand other things; as how many native-born white men there are aged 20, 25, etc.; how many foreign-born white men there are of these ages; similarly for women and colored people; then there are the questions of place of birth, occupation, etc., to be answered, as how many Texans were born in Ohio. Now imagine that all the people in the United States could march in a few months before a thousand officials, each one of whom counted only the people of one particular class or description, as white males, white females, white carpenters, Italian girls ten years old, negro farmers, etc.; then there would be obtained the various facts for which the census is taken.

The practical operation of the census gives the same results as this imaginary operation. It comes about in this way: For each one of the 77,000,000 people of the country a card a little larger than a postal card is prepared, containing all the information on the enumerator's sheets except the name, a number being used instead. This information is expressed by punching holes in certain places; thus a hole in one place means "white," another "male," another "35 years," another "blacksmith," and so on.

These millions of punched cards represent one by one the individuals of the nation, and they may be passed before the eyes of the supposed thousand officials, each of whom is to note his special facts. Going a step farther in simplifying the work, instead of the official counters mechanical counters may be substituted, and instead of trying to use a thousand at once a smaller number may be used and the cards be gone over several times. The machine will pick out the facts it is told to pick out, and no others.

The apparent intelligence of the machine may be explained thus: when the card is put into the machine some 250 spring needles are brought down on it; wherever there is a hole one needle goes through and down into a drop of mercury, and so closes an electric circuit and causes the pointer on a counter to move forward one number. Thus as many of the items on the card can be counted at once as the operator finds desirable; then another card is put in the machine and the same items are counted if they are on it. Besides this, the machine can be arranged to count several items in combination, as native-born white male doctors, and it is intelligent enough to ring a bell and refuse to count if the card is not put in properly, or is punched to read widower aged ten years, woman aged 12, female blacksmith, or any other of a score of improbabilities or impossibilities.

Southern Ports Are Gaining.
Compared with 1901, the exports from North Atlantic ports have decreased heavily. Boston lost $55,000,000; New York, $24,000,000; Philadelphia, $6,000,000; Baltimore, $25,000,000; Newport News, $7,000,000, and at Norfolk the loss was nearly $2,000,000. All ports further south gained. The increase at Washington, N. C., was $2,000,000; at Savannah, $8,000,000, and Galveston, $8,000,000. Exports across the Mexican border have increased $5,000,000; from Pacific ports, $10,000,000, and from the northern border and lake ports the increase has been $18,000,000. In imports, however, the Atlantic seaboard is increasing its commanding lead. In the year 1903, out of the total imports into the United States of $1,025,000,000, 80 per cent. came in through the Atlantic ports.

Evolution of the Ax.
The ax had its beginning in a pounding implement of rough stone. It gradually developed into a tool with an edge for hacking and a pole for pounding. Its efficiency was finally increased by the addition of a handle. It has remained a combined pounding and cutting implement up to the time of the manufacture of the double-bitted steel ax.

We Live Longer Now.
In the years 1854 to 1890 the average life of Englishmen increased about four years.

APPETITE AND MENTALITY.

Nations of Intelligence and Energy Are the Ones That Spend Most Money on Food.

It has been demonstrated by those who have investigated the subject that the people who eat are the peoples who get on and do things. People who have large appetites, it says, have become the chief nations in the world and the nature of the food consumed bears a relation to the character of the consumers.

The argument expressed in tabular form indicates in pencil the amount expended a head each day for food and the annual exports in pounds sterling:

United States.....	23	220,000,000
United Kingdom.....	28	290,000,000
Germany.....	21	220,000,000
France.....	19	165,000,000
Italy.....	9	94,000,000

The American leads the world as a meat eater, with three pounds a week; the Briton follows a close second, with a little more than two pounds and a half; the German consumes a little less than the Briton and the Russian consumes one pound, while the Italian must perforce eke out his scant half pound with large supplies of macaroni and black bread and garlic. The argument has a plausible look, says the Chicago Chronicle, but let us not forget that the finest specimens of physical strength in the whole world, with the exception of one hardy savage tribe few in numbers, comes from a spot in the Emerald Isle where the diet is potatoes and milk, chiefly skimmed, and black bread, and very little of any of them. And there is the sturdy Scot, who scarcely knows the taste of meat, but makes his way in all climates and under all conditions, though he springs from an ancestry that subsisted on oatmeal.

HOW A TRAMP SAWED WOOD.

Sounds of Hard Work Issued from Shed But Sticks Were Left Intact as Before.

Harry Sanderson, manager for Tony Pastor, who lives at Cranford, N. J., not feeling particularly well, took a day off recently and remained at home. From the window of his library, says the New York Herald, he observed a tramp entering his gate and he walked down to the rear door to meet him. It was the old story—a request for a meal. Having a load of unsawed wood in the shed, he told the fellow that if he got to work and performed on the sawbuck for a brief period he would have something prepared for him.

The tramp went to the shed and immediately the sound of vigorous sawing was heard, stick after stick parting under his energetic efforts. Calling the tramp into the kitchen, Sanderson complimented him upon his energy, and the tramp replied with a modest air that whenever he had anything to do he generally paid attention to it. The meal was eaten and the tramp expressed his thanks and departed.

Shortly afterward Sanderson went out to the shed and was surprised to find every stick of wood intact. Upon inquiry in the village he ascertained that he had been entertaining a stranded ventriloquist, who was working his way back to New York from Easton, Pa. The mean chap had simply gone into the shed and given his imitation of sawing wood.

DRINKING AND SMOKING.

Physician Declares They Are Not Companion Vices—Inebriates Find Little Comfort in the Weed.

"The prevalent idea that drinking and smoking are companion vices is altogether wrong," said a physician, who has made a special study of dipsomania, according to the Philadelphia Record. "I find, on the contrary, that the habitual drunkard is not abnormally addicted to the use of tobacco. He may use the weed as a lesser stimulant when not strongly under the influence of alcohol, but when the drink gets firmly entrenched in his system he cares nothing for tobacco, for then it has lost its force and its influence upon his nerves. Of course I mean in extreme cases.

"On the other hand, it is a rather curious fact that in the case of the moderate drinker, who also smokes, the cutting off of his supply of tobacco will increase his appetite for alcoholic beverages, and while at first the liquor will not affect him nearly so much as when he is smoking, in the end it will do him up. Consequently, it is safe to assume that the man who always used liquor and tobacco in moderation will, if he gives up tobacco, take more strongly to liquor. In fact, this is no assumption; it has been demonstrated on numerous occasions."

Telegraph in Cipher.
Chinese cannot be telegraphed, and to meet this difficulty a cipher system has been invented, by which messages in that language can be transmitted over the wires. The sender of the message has no need to trouble himself about the meaning, and, in fact, may be telegraphing all day without the slightest idea of the information he is sending, for he transmits only numerals. It is very different, however, with the receiver of the message at the other end, as he must have a code dictionary, and, after each message is received, must translate it, writing each literary character in the place of the numeral that stands for it.

The Only Titled Nute.
Sir Evelyn Arthur Fairbairn is the only subject of King Edward who bears a hereditary title and was born deaf and dumb. A tall, handsome man, with a peculiarly winning smile and attractive manner, he gives no outward sign of a misfortune which would have shadowed a temperament less buoyant than his own. Sir Arthur is a famous globe trotter, a great part of his travel having been undertaken to study means of ameliorating the lot of those afflicted as he is himself.

CHOLERA CURE

~FOR HOGS AND POULTRY.~

Farmers, you need no longer fear to raise and feed Hogs. We not only claim to cure Cholera, but we guarantee to prevent any such disease from breaking out among your Hogs or Poultry, if our remedy is used as directed. It is also fine for Brood Sows before farrowing, being a good blood medicine, which places them in a healthy condition. You cannot afford to be without this remedy if you expect to raise and feed Hogs, as you will more than make the price of the medicine in the extra gain in your hogs, and then you can rest assured they will have no disease. If they do we will refund the money. Write for testimonials

LIVE STOCK, CROP, ETC.

—R F Mark, of Side View, sold to Dick Wells, of Cynthiana, 23 yearling mules, at $75 per head.

—Thos. McClintock & Son, of Millersburg, shipped a car of extra large mules to Atlanta, Ga., Saturday.

—Earl Ferguson sold to Jonas Weil, on Friday, 200 head of fat cattle averaging about 1,350 pounds, at 4 cents.

—It will be well for the farmer to have his mind often dwell on the subject of the rotation of crops.

—W. O. Butler lost five two-year-old Shetland ponies on Sunday night by a straw stack being blown down.

—H. A. Hogan shipped a car of 30 extra yearling mules, bought of Chas. Martin, to Centerville, Tenn. Price, $126.50.

—Red Raven, owned by Hal Woodford, of this county, won a race at Lintonia, Friday, and Bad News won Saturday.

—Duck Sullivan, of Millersburg, for S. & S. Co., shipped three cars of 1,400 pounds export cattle, Saturday, bought of Will Howse and Roxie Davis.

—F. R. Estis, of Columbia, Tenn., bought 24 head of extra yearling mules from McIntyre & McClintock and 23 head of Newt. Rankin, of Carlisle.

—There are a good many men and women who are making more clear profit from an acre devoted to poultry than a good many farmers makes from forty acres in ordinary crops.

—Auctioneer Forsyth reports sale of J. C. Keller well attended. Mules brought $207, $245, $287 per pair. Horses $10 to $50. Cows $20 to $41. Bulls $25 to $51. Sows $10 to $16. Sheep $5 to $6.90.

—A much larger per cent. of the corn in the county was cribbed in October than usual on account of the dry weather. The yield is better than was expected, but lacks at least one-third of an average crop.

—If corn is not king it comes pretty near being so. It is estimated that there are 2,500,000,000 bushels of the grand old staples in sight in the country which should allay all fears of a "hoecake" famine this year.

—There will be considerable shortness of feed this winter in many localities. Concentrates are high in price and will be higher before long. All this should be an especially strong inducement to do some close culling. This high priced feed should be fed only to those cows that will yield a profit. There is no business, no sense in feeding good feed to cows that will eat their heads off before New Year. Scales and tester will help you find them.

—Wheat is in dire need of rain. The condition of seed sown a month ago is critical. It is predicted that unless rain falls in a short time a considerable per cent. of grain will perish in the ground. That sown a month ago has germinated, but is only appearing in spots where depressions afford a little moisture. Seed sown within the last fortnight is, in the main, like that still in the garner. An early rain will cause both classes to begin their long journey.

—A stock report from Atlanta, Ga., says: "Demand for horses has been fair all the fall for Southern chunccks fa and well broke, some demand for better kind. Chunccks are bringing from $65 to $100; fair to good drivers are bringing from $100 to $140; supply light all along. Mules, 14½ hands, $105 to $115; 15 hands, $120 to $135; 15½, $140 to $165; extra quality ranges higher all along the line. The demand for mules so far has been slow, tho' there has been and are now some demand and are changing hands all along, and we now look for the demand to improve as it is now time the market should open."

First Car.

The Bluegrass Traction Company began running cars over its new line between Lexington and Paris at 7 o'clock, Saturday morning. For the present, only two cars will be necessary, the run being made every hour.

The fare is 40 cents each way. Everything worked perfectly and not the slightest delay was experienced at any point. No trouble was anticipated, however, as the line had been thoroughly tested before operations were commenced.

The line passes through one of the richest regions in the world, past immense stock farms and over one of the most famous turnpikes in the state, lined on each side with hemp and tobacco fields.

The line was liberally patronized Sunday and yesterday, the cars on each trip being well-filled. Quite a number of farmers living along the line took advantage of the road in coming to County Court here yesterday.

The cars have not been able to make the turn at Fourteenth street as yet, but it is said that this will be remedied and they will soon be able to make the run to the terminal at Fifth and High streets in this city.

—To the wife of Rev. Scott Meredith, formerly Clark, in Virginia, a daughter, second born.

—In Lexington, on Friday, to the wife of Charles Yent, formerly Miss Judith Hunkill, of this city, a daughter, first born.

CAN NOT BE MOVED.—Ben Kenney, who has been ill at Providence, R. I., cannot be moved to Lexington, for some time. He has been in a private hospital and intrusted a physician with $464, which the physician, it is said, failed to return. The physician claims that the amount was due him for services rendered. It is claimed that the treatment received at the hospital was by no means satisfactory. Mr. Kenney has retained counsel.

CHURCH CHIMES.

—Last year there were sixty-eight Southern Presbyterian churches formed and thirty-eight dissolved.

—Elder Dick, of North Middletown, occupied the pulpit at the Christian church, Sunday morning. Elder Sweeney preached for Elder Dick, at Middletown.

—An election of additional officers, elders and deacons, will be held at the Second Presbyterian church, Sunday morning next.

—The Christian church at Old Union Fayette county, has extended a unanimous call to Elder J. Taylor Sharrard, of this city, for his eighth year.

—Dr. Webber's address at the Methodist church, on Sunday evening, was much enjoyed by those who were fortunate in hearing it. He is a fine speaker and quite entertaining.

—Large audiences continue to hear Mr. Collis in the protracted meeting at the Broadway Christian church, at Lexington. Many are attracted by the beautiful solos of Mrs. Princess Long, formerly of this city. Nine boys and girls made confession Sunday night, and there were four additions by letter.

Shirt Waist Sale.

Within the last few seasons—as a newspaper fashion article observes the all-the-year-round use of Wash Shirt Waists has gained many advocates. And wisely, for the Wash Shirt Waist can go into the tub each week and emerge fresh and spotless. And, for the majority of women, it is far more comfortable in the average super-heated than one of silk.

So, enter the Fall Shirt Waists, in splendid array.

Mercerized Cheviots, Vestings, Hop-Sacking, that look like silk and outlast it. Whites in the lead, with small figures and darker colorings a close second.

The evening waists, made of soft, rich Crepe de Chenes and All-Over-Lace are simply elaborate.

And as to styles—well, one way is to take a peep at the display in our east window, but the best way is to come up to the SOCIALDOM.

—At Cedar Lawn, the handsome home of Miss Lizzie Mannen Turney, the first meeting of the "As You Like It" club, for this year, was held. Four hand euchre was played and there were eight tables of club members only.

Miss Bettie Brent Johnson won the girl's prize, a card receiver and Mr. E. C. Arnold, the gentleman's prize, a key ring. Miss Eddie Spears will be the next to entertain and has set as her date, Friday, Nov. 13th.

—Mrs. Jesse Turney will entertain at Whist, Tuesday evening, in honor of Miss Paul, of West Virginia.

MARKET PRICE PAID.—I will pay the highest market price (in cash) for chickens, eggs, butter, ducks, geese and all kinds of game.

A PRETTY LITTLE FIVE-ROOM HOUSE.

THIS five-room house can be built upon a post foundation for $1,100. The design is very neat. The sizes of the rooms are as follows:

Sitting room	12x14 feet
Living room	11x14 "
Kitchen	10x10 "
Chamber	14x14 "
Chamber	11x13 "
Pantry	4x7 "

First story and second story ceilings are nine feet; floor joist, 2x8; studding 2x4; rafters, 2x4. Outside walls sheathed and sided with building paper, between floors double. Plastering, two coat work. Exterior, painted two coats.

All finish of Georgia pine. American glass, double thick. Chimney showing above roof to be faced with red press brick. Exterior of house painted white, sash dark green. Roof and end gables will have shingles dipped in creosote stain, a bright red color. The stairway from kitchen leads to cellar. Hardware is of neat design. All material throughout is of a good kind, and all work to be done in a workman-like manner.

CAUSE OF CLOUDBURSTS.

Weather Man Says Forest Fires in One Section May Produce Hard Rain in Another.

Following the recent floods which cost so many lives and resulted in such an enormous loss to property in Kansas and South Carolina, a scientific statement as to the probable cause of such conditions and which make such floods possible is not untimely. Section Director J. W. Bauer, of the Columbia weather bureau, formerly of the New York and of the Mount Washington stations, in an interview said the great forest fires which have raged throughout New York and New England for the past few weeks are the primary causes of the recent cloudburst.

Meteorologists agree that before condensation of the vapor of the atmosphere is possible to produce even the smallest drop of rain there must be a nucleus of dust or some foreign matter on which the condensation takes place; the drop then enlarges by additional or accretional condensation until its weight is enough to cause it to fall to the ground.

For the past three or four weeks there have been extensive forest fires throughout New York and New England, and as the prevailing winds during this time have been from the north-east much of this smoke and dust or ashes has been drifting in this direction in a so finely divided condition that it was not perceptible to the unaided eye. It will also be recalled that during one week, ending May 26, the winds were westerly to southerly, and that that week was particularly cloudless, but as soon as the easterly to northerly winds again set in the sky was overcast nearly the whole time. These forest fires, nearly 1,000 miles away, furnished the nuclei for the disaster at Pacolet, made the cloudburst possible, in connection with the high relative humidity of the air, the barometric pressure favorable for thunderstorms, and the topographical features of the country where it occurred.

It is probable that somewhere within the drainage basin of the two forks of the Pacolet river and its smaller tributaries, the rainfall was exceedingly heavy, but if it was only five inches in so short a time as the three or four hours that the reports say the rain lasted, it is enough to explain the sudden rise of the river from a comparatively narrow stream to a raging expanse of water.—Columbia (S. C.) Letter in Boston Globe.

THE BREEDING OF CORN.

New Agricultural Science That Follows the Same General Laws as Stock Breeding.

Corn breeding is a modification of live stock breeding, and follows the same general laws and principles. It is the application of principles of plant and animal breeding to the corn plant. The per cent. of sugar in the sugar beet has been increased from three per cent. to 16 per cent. The ordinary beet was improved by seed selection, so that an enormous industry has been built up and a new source of sugar given to the world. This has been done with a plant which seeds once in two years. Corn produces a crop every year, a single seed producing a return of over a thousand fold. From this great number of offspring, varying in size, shape, color and composition, a selection can be made which will develop any feature of the seed or plant. By continued selection, these valuable attributes can be fixed in the characteristics of the plant, and the usefulness and importance of the crop increased. To illustrate the point: We have been able, by selecting ears having long shanks, to increase the length of the shank nearly two feet in five years' selection. By selecting ears with tall stalks, we have been able to increase the height of the stalk almost three feet in five years. By selecting ears from plants having wide leaves, we have been able to increase the average width of the leaf, and by selecting ears from stalks having narrow leaves, we have been able to decrease the width of the leaf.—The Cosmopolitan.

The Vitality of Seeds.

Accounts of the sprouting of seeds after having been buried many years or even centuries are usually open to doubt, but Dr. Beal has shown by reliable tests that 12 out of 21 species had the power of germinating after 20 years. To settle the interesting question of extreme vitality is the purpose of the experiments begun by the United States department of agriculture. Seeds of 100 species, including common garden and field plants, as well as many grasses and weeds, have been carefully placed in dry clay soil in pots and buried, eight complete sets being covered to a depth of six to eight inches, 12 sets to 20 inches and 12 sets to three and one-half feet. A set from each depth is to be tested at the end of one, two, three, five, seven, ten, 15 and 20 years, and from the two deeper lots at the end of 25, 300, 40 and 50 years.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

HAVE TELESCOPIC EYES.

Some Families of Deep-Sea Fishes Make Their Own Light by Means of Phosphorescence.

The deep-sea explorations of the last few years have exploded the notion that the depths of the sea are in total darkness, as earlier explorations disposed of the assumption that they are devoid of life. Says Umschau, in an article on this subject:

"It is true that not a ray of sunlight illumines the gloom that reigns at great depths in the sea; but the denizens of the deep, or some of them, make their own light by phosphorescence. It is a very feeble light, to be sure, and therefore the deep-sea fishes are provided with eyes of a peculiar sort. They are called telescopic eyes, not because they are much like a telescope, optionally, but because they are so arranged in many cases that they closely resemble an opera-glass. They are more or less projecting tubes, cylindrical or conical, and have very large pupils or lenses. They are not placed on each side of the head as in other fishes, but are close together and point upward or forward, so that they have the power of binocular vision, as in man. There is a great difference in the appearance of these telescopic eyes in different deep-sea fishes. Some project but slightly, while others are placed on the ends of a long stalk. But in all cases the eye itself is much elongated, not spherical, like most eyes. Those variations can be followed in the embryo, whence it appears that these peculiar fishes have been gradually evolved from ordinary types and have acquired organs necessary to life in their gloomy home. It is probable, too, that they dwell near the surface when young. The retina of this singular form of eye is divided into two parts, one for ordinary vision, the other for the purpose of catching any stray ray of light that may strike from the side. There are also some other peculiar arrangements similar to those which give to birds their remarkably keen sight and which are also found in whales. In short, the telescopic eye, the pupil of which is always wide open, is constructed with the view of utilizing the feeblest glimmer of light."

GRAVITATION VERIFIED.

Newton's Law, Says an American Investigator, Is Accurate to One Millionth Per Cent.

At a recent meeting of the American Philosophical society in Philadelphia Prof. Ernest W. Brown, of Haverford, Pa., said:

Two bodies attract one another inversely as the square of the distance; that is, if the distance be halved the force is increased four times; if the distance is divided by ten the force is increased 100 times. This is the Newtonian law of gravitation. The moon, earth, sun and planets all should obey this law, which was discovered by Isaac Newton in the seventeenth century. How far do the bodies obey it? The most sensitive is the moon. We are able to observe its motions so accurately and predict its phases with such unflinching certainty by means of this law that we can scarcely have much doubt that it is correct. But, nevertheless, there are some small deviations, and the question is whether these deviations are due to errors in the calculations of astronomers or to something wrong in the law itself.

Hansen's theory of the moon's motion has been accepted up to the present, but there are still some small differences between his theory and observation. Two, at least, of these have been unexplained in the periods of revolution of the perigee and node. My calculations have shown that the differences are due to errors in Hansen's theory and that on a correct theory they do not exist. Thus, it appears that Newton's law is accurate to one-millionth per cent! It is by far the most accurate physical law known, and perhaps the most striking evidences of the fact that our existence and surroundings are not the result of chance.—Science.

WHEN WOMEN SHOULD WED.

There Are Crises in the Lives of All When Matrimony Is Imperative.

There are times in every woman's life, according to the Baltimore Sun, when she will marry anybody that comes along. These times are when she is 17 and 27. Between these ages she is discriminative, and after the second of the two she is apathetic. To the girl of 17, it is said, the idea that she makes a real live man's heart go pit-a-pat is so ecstatic that in gratitude for the distinction of a passionate proposal she easily fancies she is in love. She thinks her refusal to marry Augustus will break his heart and send him to an early grave. So she weds him out of generous pity in order not to wreck his life. She says "yes" and learns afterward that Augustus' heart is tough and had survived numerous prior desperate attachments. At 17 it is any man—any individual sufficiently inoffensive to allow her to nourish unchecked the illusions which her self-love cherishes. For at this age man is only the occasion, not the object of her affections. He is only a dummy; it is she who occupies the whole stage with her swiftly varying fancies and caprices.

At 19 she has evolved an ideal. It is not longer any man, but a particular man—a man tall, dark, passionate looking, with a Byronic air. One at war with his kind and of abnormal opinions is the type. He may be pessimistic and melancholy. His merit is that he finds in her the beauty, purity and innocence that restore his faith in humanity and make happiness again a rational hope. A year later she is still romantic, but experience begins to make her a trifle more practical. The spectacular beauty of striking physical aspect is refined into the strong, earnest man, who looks at things in a lofty, high-minded way and has a fad. Her idol may be a matinee hero, an unappreciated genius, a social settlement worker or a long-haired poet. It is a time of danger. She may accept a theological student or elope with her music teacher. Such is her missionary spirit that she is capable of marrying a drunkard to reform him. With 22 there is less risk of such unpromising ventures. She begins to enjoy life in its unoperative aspects, without exclusive reference to her subjective meditations. Matrimony, like Heaven, is a cherished aspiration, but social incidents have become interesting. She sees farther than before into the drama of life as others play it and it entertains her. Many tepid admirers, she thinks, are better than one who is fiery. In short, she is having a good time and is averse to exchanging the gayeties of life for a humdrum husband. If she marries at this age she is likely to make a discreet choice.

At 27, however, comes a period of panic, and, as ten years before, the danger is great. It is seen that her contemporaries have nearly all married. The girls who were her schoolmates are settled matrons and boast the virtues of their children. She accordingly begins to feel lonesome. The younger set put her aside or ask her to chaperon their parties. Perhaps a gray hair—awful sight!—makes its appearance. Is she an old maid? The idea affrights her. She loses her nerve and plunges wildly, taking the first man that offers. Foolish matches belong to this period—the supernatant beau or the widower with ten children.

COMFORT OF OUTING FLANNEL.

Made into Undergarments It Is a Great Protection in Cold Weather.

Pretty, serviceable, cheap and easily laundered—no wonder housewives are learning to appreciate more and more the many uses of outing flannel, says Prairie Farmer Home Magazine. For cool weather nothing can impart more comfort to a tired woman than a soft, dainty nightgown made after some pretty pattern. Feather-stitching with white silk or in shades to match the color of the flannel will be all the trimming necessary. An easier way still is to trim with the stitched "fairy" braid which can be purchased for only a few cents per bolt. The gowns may be bought, ready-made, at a reasonable price, but are neither so comfortable nor pretty as the home-made.

A Great Protection for a woman in very cold weather is a corset cover of this flannel. The garment may be made after the usual corset cover pattern and may be ornamented by feather-stitching or "fairy" braid around the neck and armholes and a shell edge of white or colored silk crocheted into the cloth. A person suffering with cold feet will find infinite comfort in a pair of bed slippers made from outing flannel. They may be cut after a stocking pattern, finished around the top with a shell edge crocheted into the cloth, and draw ribbon or elastic.

The nearest short petticoat may be had by making up two and one-half yards of this flannel in some very pretty pattern and finishing off with narrow lace made from one-half a skein of wool.

Gingerbread Pudding.

Two cups stale ginger bread crumbs, one-fourth to one-half cup minced suet or butter, one-half cup bread flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon each of clove, allspice, nutmeg, or mace, two tablespoons of molasses, one-half cup currants, one cup seeded raisins, three-fourths to one cup of milk. Let stand one-half hour, add two beaten eggs; steam three hours.—Boston Globe.

Cranberries as Medicine.

In cases of bilious or typhoid fever the juice of cranberries is almost indispensable for clearing the system of the poisonous bacteria. In some forms of dyspepsia there is no more effective and simple remedy than raw cranberries. Carry a supply in the pocket.—Atlanta Constitution.

Remarkable Timepiece.

In one of the chief watchmaking establishments in Zurich there is to be seen a remarkable curiosity in the way of watch or clock making. The timepiece is in the form of a ball, which moves imperceptibly down an inclined surface, without rolling. The length of this inclined surface, which is 16 inches long, is accomplished from top to bottom in 24 hours. Then the "ball" only needs lifting to the top again. This extraordinary timepiece has no spring, and therefore needs no winding. The "hands" are kept in motion by the sliding along an inclined plane.—London Globe.

Population of Abyssinia.

The population of Abyssinia is about 10,000,000. The products of the country, exclusive of cereals, are ivory, sibeib or civet, wax, hides, coffee and gold, the latter abounding in the mountains, where the mines are merely scratched. In cotton, North Americans have captured the market against England, France and Germany. In spite of the high price of labor and the enormous cost of freight for such a distance, Americans have succeeded in capturing the trade by the low prices of their products. Different nations sell these goods, but they are all American made.

AMUSEMENTS.

The following are some of the attractions that will appear in this city, this month:

Miss Agnes Ardeck, in "Under The Royal Oak;" Miss Helen Grantley, in "In the Palace of the King;" Mrs. LeMoine, in a new play which will be announced later; Mr. John Griffith, the well-known romantic actor, in "Macbeth;" "The Chinese Honeymoon," with eighty people, and one of the biggest hits of the season, "Peck and His Mother-in-Law Abroad," carrying two cars with fifty people.

When Charles H. Yale, originally produced his famous spectacle, the "Devil's Auction," it was called "The Devil's Auction" or "The Golden Branch." After a few years Manager Yale christened it "The New Devil's Auction." A few more and it was known as "The New Devil's Auction." Then came "The Newest Devil's Auction." Then "Forever Devil's Auction." Then again "The Forever and Ever Devil's Auction" and finally upon reaching the 20th edition it became "The Everlasting Devil's Auction" and as it remains "Everlasting" upon this its twenty-second edition, it seems as if Manager Yale has reached the limit of its titles. At the Grand Opera House, to-night.

Katherine Willard in "The Power Behind the Throne" will be one of the noteworthy attractions in this city during the coming season.

A WOMAN'S school of barbers in Philadelphia offers to do hair cutting for two cents. Hair pulling will doubtless continue to be done free of charge.

SECRETARY SHAW came over into Kentucky to give a little aid and encouragement to his party. Mr. Taylor, however, contents himself with writing interviews under an Indianapolis, Ind., date line.

WITTY, able, logical Judge Mulligan's speech contains solid and convincing argument for the success of the Democratic party, and a tribute to Gov. Beckham eloquently bestowed and most worthily won.

GENERAL BUCKNER declares that he has surrendered his Democratic principles. There is a very general impression among loyal Democrats that Buckner's "surrender" happened several years ago.

This has been a strenuous year. A horse that got a world's record usually awakened the next morning to learn that it had been snatched away from him. Crowns have been tossed about until they look like the battered tin cups chained to the town pump.

THE Cleveland boom has received another boost. Senator Hanna said in a meeting at Cleveland: "Gover Cleveland is another great Democrat, greater than his time or his party." Now who will be so rash as to question Cleveland's Democracy or greatness, after this generous indorsement?

BECAUSE President Roosevelt invited John Mitchell to lunch the Glob-Democrat shouts: "Guess the labor vote won't be lost, after all." The average republican organ always did proceed on the theory that labor had no higher ideal than a full stomach.

THE campaign has come to an end and the Democrats have progressed in fine shape and will give a good old fashioned majority in the county to-day. Every precinct has been thoroughly organized and campaign speakers have been kept busy telling the voters good Democratic doctrine.

THE Hon. W. P. Kimball spoke Saturday afternoon at Flat Rock, in this county, in the interest of the Democratic ticket. A large crowd heard him and by their enthusiasm showed that their interest in the success of the ticket is deep and that old Bourbon may be depended upon to return an old-time Democratic majority, to-day.

A VOTE to-day for Beckham means a white man's government; the prosecution and hanging of assassins, both Democrat and Republican; a reduction of State taxation; Kentucky free from debt; separate schools for white and black; separate coaches for white and black; peace and prosperity.

A vote for Belknap to-day means pardon for Powers and Howard; return of Taylor, Finley & Co.; indorsement of assassination; repeal of separate coach law; mixed schools in Kentucky; social and political equality; turmoil and strife.

Democrats, this is the most important election since the war. Go to the polls, take your neighbors with you and all vote for "right" and Democracy.

SLOT RESTAURANTS.

America Has Adopted the Automatic Lunch Server.

Soups and Liquors Served as Well as Solid Foods Upon the Insertion of Requisite Coins.

Now we have the automatic restaurant, a gigantic slot machine or combination of slot machines, from which we can purchase food and drink. The wonder is, says the Scientific American, that this idea is not of American, but of German, origin. Automatic restaurants have been a familiar sight in many of the more prominent European cities for the last nine years.

New York's restaurant, in principle, is very much the same as those of the German towns. It is fitted up much more elaborately, however. There are no waiters in the usually accepted sense of that term. The two or three white-aproned men who nonchalantly roam around without apparently much to do are there not to serve meals, but to remove the empty dishes. You must serve yourself. You buy your portion of meat or soup, your glass of beer or wine, or your cup of coffee, and you carry what you have brought to your table. If you are in a hurry you may stand and eat, and enjoy what is popularly known as a "perpendicular meal."

In describing the automatic restaurant, it may be well to divide its various appliances into three classes. The first class of machines sell hot food by means of coins and checks; the second dispenses cold food (salads, desserts) by the use of coins alone, and the third sells liquid, (beer, wine, coffee, whiskey, liquors, etc.) by the use of coins alone.

The bill of fare is printed upon a board in which the slots are located. Each slot bears a reference letter. Opposite slot A a small placard is pasted which gives the name of the particular dish to be purchased by dropping a coin in the slot. Similar legends are printed upon the placards pasted opposite slots B, C, D, etc.

After the desired dish has been selected, a coin of the proper denomination is dropped into the corresponding slot. A handle is pulled, which rings a bell in the basement, and signals the attendants. Simultaneously a brass check is delivered. The coin has dropped down a chute, which lies adjacent to an elevator and is held in place at the bottom by a retaining device. By counting the number of coins as they lie side by side above the retaining device, the attendant knows exactly how many dishes of that particular food are wanted. As each dish is served the retaining device is released, so that a coin drops into a receptacle, leaving behind a number of coins corresponding to the number of dishes still to be served. The food, attractively served in neat china-ware, is placed on a silvered metal tray in one of the compartments of the elevator, and a crank is turned in order to raise the elevator to the floor above. The purchaser sees his dish as it lies in the elevator behind a glass partition; he cannot reach it, however, because it has been lifted somewhat above the discharge opening. Not until he has dropped his brass check into a second slot, bearing a reference letter corresponding to that of the coin slot, and pulled another handle, will the elevator descend sufficiently to enable him to obtain his purchase.

Here one peculiarity in the slot mechanism of the automatic restaurant should be mentioned. Spurious coins, as well as coins of improper value, fail to operate the mechanism. An honest slot machine is probably as rare as an honest man. The automatic restaurant machines, however, are far more trustworthy than many human beings. Coins of improper value which have been erroneously inserted are returned. The purchaser is not cheated.

Cold foods, such as salads and desserts, are placed upon the elevator of another section and raised to the purchasing floor in full view, protected, of course, by glass partitions. In order to purchase what one desires, it is necessary simply to drop a coin in the slot and to pull a handle. The elevator then descends one step so that the particular salad or dessert can be withdrawn from the discharge opening just as in the previous case. No checks are here used, since the dishes are cold and the attendants below need not be informed of the particular kind of food desired.

The liquor-dispensing machines have for their most interesting feature a self-measuring valve by means of which an amount of liquor is dispensed which is the exact equivalent in quantity of the value of the money received. It is rather curious to observe that for a five-cent piece a glass of beer—no more and no less—runs out of the faucet. Kummel, Benedictine and other liquors are sold with like mechanical accuracy. The glasses are brimful; not a drop too much trickled out of the cask.

The valve by which the coffee is dispensed is of similar construction. The coffee is kept hot by means of a vessel containing water, within which the coffee tank itself is contained.

New York is by no means the first American city to possess an automatic restaurant. Philadelphia anticipated it by some months. The Philadelphia equipment is exactly similar, mechanically to that of New York. Restaurants on the same principle are soon to be opened in Chicago and the leading American cities.
